Connegat Incidents of the Menmax War .- The Editor of the Lowell Courier who had served in Mexico with credit both to his sword and his pen, relates some anecdotes of a breach of the treaty in Mexico, matrimontally considered," He says the officers of our army, though they well withstood the bullets and valor of the Mexican mondid not delend themselves so effectually against the bright eyes and -eductive forms of the Mexicon women. Some of them were married to Mexican girls, and some others it appears, ought to have been. Some of the Mexican ladies followed their false lovers to Yura Cruz, expecting to be taken to the United States, and others, have pursued even across the Gulf the mon who nevgr retreated in war, but who faithle sly descried their colors in love. The Charter says, we have decemby heard of two very interesting instances of this character. The one was that of a daughter of a Mexican merchant, who followed her American lover-an officer in the army-to Lis home in the South; and finding that he was on duty in California, sha sent a relative after him to that distant region, with a complaint, that he had been guilty of a breach of promise. The officer, finding no other way of escape, was compelled to settle the affair by the payment of several thousand dollarswhich he could well afford to do. The other instance was that of a friend in New England, who became attached, after a fashion, to a Spanish girl in the city of Mexico. Since his return, a Mexican gentleman has anexprotedly paid him a visit for the puronse of having a better understanding or settlement of the matter. Our friend-having some time since thrown away his character as an officer in the army- had gone to California; and the Mexican plenipotentiary, upon learping the fact, started off in pursuit of him by the very next steamer. It chanced, however, that our military friend was already on his return home, and passed his pursuer on his route. As he happened to have a wife in New England, and as the Spanish Judy has a bushemt in Mexico, we can hardly timk the case is one that will render it necessary for the Presidents of the two resublies to interfere in the matter -co fir, at least, as that one shall make a requisition upon the other for the fegitive from partrimony. The national treaty is likely to stand, notwithstanding such an apparent individnal breach of the matrimonial contract.
